Migrant Workers in Asia - Nicole Constable - 2013-09-13

This book provides rich and provocative comparative studies of South and Southeast Asian domestic workers who migrate to other parts of Asia. These studies range from Hong Kong, Macau, and Singapore, to Yemen, Israel, Jordan, and the UAE. Conceptually and methodologically, this book challenges us to move beyond established regional divides and proposes new ways of mapping inter-Asian connections. The authors view migrant workers within a wider spatial context of intersecting groups and trajectories through time. keenly attentive to the import of migrants of diverse nationalities who have labored in multiple regions, this book examines intimate connections and distant divides in the social lives and politics of migrant workers across time and space. Collectively, the authors propose new themes, new comparative frameworks, and new methodologies for considering vastly different degrees of social support structures and political activism, and the varied meanings of citizenship and state responsibility in sending and receiving countries. They highlight the importance of formal institutions that shape and promote migratory labor, advocacy for workers, or curtail workers rights, as well as the social identities and cultural practices and beliefs that may be linked to new inter-ethnic social and political affiliations that traverse and also transform inter-Asian spaces and pathways to mobility. This book was published as a special issue of Critical Asian Studies.

The liberalization of trade and its questionable benefits; the increasing fluidity in the movement of people and trade across geo-political divides; the emergence of unregulated virtual trade and its implications on domestic economic policy; and the social implications of the new world order are all issues demanding on-going critical examination from a perspective beyond the common lens of neo-liberal economics. Such an examination is pursued in Kouzmin and Hayne edited volume Essays in Economic Globalization, Transnational Policies and Vulnerability, a collection of 13 diverse, challenging and, often, cautionary chapters contributed by an international cohort of scholars.

Halliburton’s Army - Pratap Chatterjee - 2010-03-23

Halliburton’s Army is the first book to show, in shocking detail, how Halliburton really does business, in Iraq, and around the world. From its vital role as the logistical arm of US military forces, to its vital role in the global energy industry, Halliburton’s Army is the first book to show how Halliburton won and then lost its contracts in Iraq, what Dick Cheney and Donald Rumsfeld did for it, and who the company paid off in the U.S. Congress. He brings us inside the Pentagon meetings, where Cheney and Rumsfeld made the decision to send Halliburton to Iraq—as well as many other hot-spots, including Somalia, Yugoslavia, Uzbekistan, Afghanistan, Guangxi-Mianzou, and, most recently, New Orleans. He travels to Dubai, where Halliburton has recently moved its headquarters, and exposes the company’s freestyled ways: executing the lead life, fleecing, graft, skimming, offshore subsidiaries, and the whole arsenal of fraud. Finally, Chatterjee reveals the human costs of the privatization of American military affairs, which is sustained almost entirely by low-paid unskilled Third World workers who work in incredibly dangerous conditions without any labor protection. Halliburton’s Army is a hair-raising expose of one of the world’s most lethal corporations, essential reading for anyone concerned about the nexus of private companies, government, and war.

customs, gender, religion, and nationalism. It also examines various social and political forces - the peasantry, the middle class, indigenous peoples, NGOs, the left, labor unions - in their efforts to shape the course of Philippine history.

Ethnicity, Nationality and Religious Experience - Peter C. Phan - 1995

The contributors to this volume investigate the ways in which religious experience is shaped by the ethnic, national, and global contexts. Contents: Ethnicity and Nationality as Contexts for Religious Experience; 'Love the Stranger: Remember when you were Strangers in Egypt'; The Historical Relatibility of Jesus' Experience of God; One Woman's Body: Depression and Expression in the Passover Passages; Method in the Rise of Women's Religious Experience; Contributions from Paul Ricoeur's Theory of Narrative; Ethnicity and Religious Experience in the Social Ethics of Glisson Winter. The Routledge Handbook of the Contemporary Philippines provides a comprehensive overview of the current political, economic, trade unionism, the women's movement, and major insurgencies. Written by leading experts in the field, the Handbook provides students, scholars, and policymakers of Southeast Asia with an interdisciplinary resource on the evolving politics, society, and economics of the Philippines.

Critique of Philippine Economic and Politics - José Maria Sison - 2021-07-05

Critique of Philippine Economic and Politics seeks to explain comprehensively the basic character of Philippine society and the basic problems that afflict the Filipino people, especially the toiling masses of workers and peasants. Since 1946, the US has granted nominal independence to the Philippines but has retained US dominance over the economic, political, cultural and social life of the Filipino people. The shift has merely been from direct colonial to semicolonial or neocolonial rule. The semi-feudal economy has persisted. There has been no genuine land reform and national industrialization. Imperialism, feudalism and bureaucratic capitalism perpetuate underdevelopment, exploitation, mass unemployment and widespread poverty. About the author: José Maria Sison is the Founding Chairman of the Communist Party of the Philippines, Chairman, Political Consultant of the National Democratic Front of the Philippines, and Chairman Emeritus of the National Democratic Front of the Philippines. Sison has continuously studied Philippine society as a student, as a teacher of literature and political science and as a full time protest revolutionary. About the series: The International Network is proud to present the third book of the Subversion Reader Series, Critique of Philippine Economy and Politics. To follow shortly will be the fourth book on the People's Democratic Revolution.

This book describes how the U.S. military bases in Okinawa, Japan, have transformed an entire island into a military district. In the face of unprecedented challenges, the book offers strategies for community involvement in the base as a means of bringing peace and justice to the island and the world. Excellent source for those interested in Japan and Okinawa, U.S. military basing, migration, and mixed ethnicities.

Based on original field research on organizing campaigns among L.A. day laborers, garment workers, car wash workers, security officers, janitors, taxi drivers, hotel workers as well as the efforts of ethnically focused worker centers and immigrant rights organizations. The authors interviewed key organizers, gained access to primary documents, and conducted participant observation. Working for Justice is a valuable resource for sociologists and other scholars in the interdisciplinary field of labor studies, as well as for advocates and policymakers.

Working for Justice - Ruth Milkman - 2011-01-15

Working for Justice, which includes eleven case studies of recent low-wage worker organizing campaigns in Los Angeles, makes the case for a distinctive "L.A. Model" of union and worker center organizing. Networks linking advocates in worker centers and labor unions facilitate mutual learning and synergy and have generated a shared repertoire of economic justice strategies. The organized labor movement in Los Angeles has weathered the effects of deindustrialization and deregulation better than unions in other parts of the United States, and this has helped to anchor the city's sizable low-wage worker movement. Los Angeles is also home to the nation's highest concentration of undocumented immigrants, making it especially fertile territory for low-wage worker organizing. The case studies in Working for Justice are all based on original field research on organizing campaigns among L.A. day laborers, garment workers, car wash workers, security officers, janitors, taxi drivers, hotel workers as well as the efforts of ethnically focused worker centers and immigrant rights organizations. The authors interviewed key organizers, gained access to primary documents, and conducted participant observation.
